

MOLUSAN

Special balm for treating skin with molluscum and warts

Code: 2804

As molluscum contagiosum we call skin lesions that have a small dimple in their centre. They tend to have the colour of the skin, but mostly they are red, and sometimes they go septic. They are typically the size of a pea; however, they can be even larger. It is an infectious viral disease. It is very common and contagious among children, because it is transmitted via physical contact with a sick person. In adults, the sexual intercourse is also one of the routes of transmission. They can appear anywhere on the skin, whether individually or in groups. Some essential oils used in aromatherapy are known for their antiviral effects. It is for this reason they were used in MOLUSAN. It was the very garlic oil with its unpleasant smell in combination with other essential oils that has proved very effective in treating skin with molluscum or warts.

Main ingredients: Shea butter, lanolin. Essential oils: garlic, rose, sage, winter savory, clove, niaouli.

Application: Apply the necessary amount of MOLUSAN on the skin with molluscum or wart. Apply 2 times a day.

Mr. Hadek's recommendation: Due to MOLUSAN's good adhesion to the skin, it covers the lesion itself including the area around it. I recommend covering the areas with an adhesive bandage. This is to ensure that the preparation stays on the lesion and the clothes doesn't get dirty. It should be applied at least 2 times a day.
